Community's highest award reflects Greenberg legacy

By Cynthia Nyman Engel

Last year, the untimely deaths of uncle and nephew, Lorry Greenberg, 65, and Lawrence Greenberg, 54, saw a leading Ottawa family lose two of its cherished members and the Ottawa Jewish community two of its staunchest champions.

Their personal circumstances were such that both Lorry and Lawrence could have lived a life of ease. Instead, each chose to devote much of his time and considerable talents to the well-being and sustaining of the Ottawa Jewish community. Together, they jointly provided over 36 years of leadership to the Jewish and the general communities.

This year, in recognition of the unwavering commitment demonstrated to the Ottawa Jewish community during their lifetime, Lorry Greenberg and Lawrence Greenberg will receive, posthumously, the Gilbert Greenberg Distinguished Service Award for 2000. The announcement was made by Barbara Farber, chair of the Selection Committee.

The award is the highest tribute which the community can bestow on an individual for exceptional service over the course of many years. Initiated in 1980, it bears the name of the late Vaad Past President Gilbert Greenberg, who exemplified the qualities of leadership which the award seeks to recognize each year. The presentation of the award will take place at the Annual Meeting of the Community on Wednesday, June 7.

Gilbert Greenberg would have been very proud of the commitment to commun-ty that his brother, Lorry and his nephew, Lawrence, exhibited during their lifetime," said Barbara Farber.

"In a front page tribute to Gilbert Greenberg which appeared in the October 3, 1980 issue of the Bulletin following the death of his dear friend, Vaad President Sol Shinder wrote, 'Gilbert was not content with the status quo in Jewish life. It had to be improved and he would leave no stone unturned to achieve this end.' Farber said.

"That same drive and determination is obviously a strong component in the Greenberg Family gene pool," Farber said. "Lorry and Lawrence distinguished themselves in service to the community and in so doing made this community infinitely better."

Lorry Greenberg was born in Ottawa on December 31, 1933 and passed away on June 30, 1999. He was named Lawrence, in memory of his uncle Laizer Greenberg, but throughout his lifetime the youngest of the late Roger and Rose Greenberg's seven chil-

Leiba Krantzberg chosen 2000 Freiman Family awardee

By Cynthia Nyman Engel

Leiba Krantzberg was just four months into new motherhood in the summer of 1991 when she was invited to sit on the board of Machzikei Hadas Sisterhood. Without skipping a beat, she said yes.

In record time, Leiba's commitment, energy and superb people skills caught the attention of other community organizations. In nine short years, Leiba, 32, has assembled a volunteer portfolio that many do not accumulate in a lifetime.

In recognition of the outstanding leadership she has demonstrated over the years, Leiba Krantzberg will receive the 2000 Freiman Family Young Leadership Award. The announcement was made by

Walkathon – an event for all ages to share fun, fellowship and help UJA

By Barbara Crook

Don't be surprised if you see some wild and wacky costumes at the Loblaw's UJA Walkathon 2000. At least one of the teams in the new team relay division hopes to win a prize by dressing up for the event – and others may follow.

"There's a lot of spirit and a lot of excitement," says Naomi Lipsky Cracower, who is heading up the team relay event with husband Allan Cracower.

"We've lined up about 25 teams so far, including many people who wouldn't normally take part in the Walkathon. We also have people who are not participating, but are still sponsors. We think that's wonderful.

"After all, the money is still going to the Tikvah Fund, whether they walk or run or stay home."

The May 28 walk is dedicated to the memory of Lawrence Greenberg, former president of the Vaad Ha'Ir and long-time Walkathon supporter, who was killed in a car accident December 12.

Most of the money raised will go to the Tikvah Poverty Assistance Fund, managed by Jewish Family Services to help needy Jewish people with such basic necessities as shoes, glasses, medicine and food.

A portion of this year's Walkathon proceeds will be donated to the United Way of Ottawa-Carleton for its poverty assistance programs.

COMMENTARY

A first class home for community's elderly

VAAD REPORT

MELANE HOTZ
PRESIDENT, HILLEL LODGE

Editor's note: Vaad President Stephen Greenberg has arranged to share his column, on occasion, with the chairs or presidents of the community's major beneficiary agencies or committees so that they can provide some insight into their operations.

For many months we have all been anticipating the opening of the newest building on the Community Campus, the Joseph and Inez Zelikovitz Long Term Care Centre. People are asking questions ... Who will live at the Lodge? How do we apply? What will it cost? This is a good time to recollect how the new Bess and Moe Greenberg Family Hillel Lodge has come into being and to provide some answers.

After 35 years of service to the community, the building on Wurtemburg Street could no longer meet our expectations for the care of the frail elderly and disabled in our community. There were not enough single rooms. Forty-eight beds were also too few. Program and activity areas, dating from the time when the Lodge was still partly a retirement home, needed enlarging and upgrading.

These days there are many more frail elderly and disabled people who cannot live safely and independently at home. As well, our Ottawa Jewish community is growing, the proportion of people over 75 is growing the fastest, and the need for combined residential and health care is increasing. So we were delighted when, first, the Ontario Ministry of Health, and then our Regional Government, announced capital funding to help us build a long-term care centre on the campus.

The Jewish community responded with exceptional generosity to the capital campaigns to raise the balance of the costs, and construction is now nearly complete. This fall, the new Lodge will provide a home, and nursing and rehabilitation services, to 100 residents.

The Community Care Access Centre (CCAC) is currently authorized by the Ontario Ministry of Health to do the assessments for admission to the Lodge, and will continue to do so. The provincial government funds the nursing and other professional services for all residents. Residents are charged the fees set by the Ministry for meals and accommodation, the same as in any other regulated facility, and government subsidies are available for low-income residents. Extra charges apply for private rooms and, for the first time, there will be sufficient in the new Lodge to meet this demand.

We will still rely on community donations and membership revenues to support the kosher meals and other special features of the Bess and Moe Greenberg Family Hillel Lodge, which remains the only Jewish long-term care facility in Eastern Ontario.

Currently, the long-term care system is burdened with very long waiting lists for beds and a severe shortage of community nurses. Thanks to the vision and determination of a myriad of supporters, our community's new Lodge will help many more families cope with these challenges, and it will be a first class setting for the care of their loved ones for decades to come.

See you at the opening in September!

There can be two winners

This is a story of a mother who walked into her kitchen to find two of her children fighting over the last orange in the fruit bowl.

"It's mine," shouted Moshe. "No, it's mine, I need it!" shouted Sarah.

Not willing to continue listening to the ever louder bickering, the mother took a knife and in what she thought was a Solomonic resolution, cut the orange in half and walked out of the kitchen. Upon her return, she discovered two unhappy children. Asked why they were unhappy, Sarah explained, "Mom, you don't get it. I wanted the juice for my drink, and Moshe was baking cookies and only wanted the rind. Neither of us was happy with half an orange."

If we listen carefully we can sometimes have two winners.

Conflicts and disputes are part of life; they date back to the time of Adam and Eve. Conflicts can provide opportunities for constructive change by allowing misunderstandings to be brought to the open.

We live in a litigious society with winners and losers. The Jewish concept rodef shalom, as exemplified by Aaron the Priest, is the pursuit of peace, where a win-win scenario is an ideal which we are to strive for.

For some people a win is not baving their problem solved but rather having their voice heard.

Mediation is one of many alternative dispute resolutions. It is a voluntary process for resolving disputes whereby a neutral third party assists the parties in coming to a mutually acceptable resolution.

As a result of years of requests for aid in settling disputes within the Jewish community, the Canadian Jewish Congress, at the 1998 25th Triennial Plenary Assembly in Winnipeg, brought about the creation of the Jewish Mediation Services of Ontario (JMSO). However, according to the mandate of the JMSO, disagreements arising from family conflicts will not be accepted by this national mediation body.

Divorce and other family issues do not have a Jewish-oriented mediation structure in Ottawa. Our local rabbis, a number of lawyers, and social service and mental health personnel have over the years served as unofficial mediators in local family matters. What our community needs is a gentler alternative to the bitter process of divorce. Divorce by its very nature turns into an adversarial battle. The legal terms for the parties of a divorce, the plaintiff vs. the defendant, are adversarial in nature.

FROM THE PULPIT

RABBI ELY M. BRAUN

How often have you heard the expression "shark" or "barracuda" as descriptive terms for the lawyers in a divorce proceeding? Too often, in the end, everyone is a loser except maybe the lawyers. My intention is not to bash lawyers. The "barracudas" act the way they do for the benefit of the client and in many cases they are the only ones protecting the interest of the client from everyone including themselves.

Looking at the proceedings of the traditional divorce, we see a general attitude of conflict and competition. This process seems to be totally contrary to a Jewish way of pursuing peace and justice. Although Shalom Bayit (peace in the home) is not possible in a divorce situation, there is no reason why the end result cannot be shalom in two homes.

Mediation of couples at the time of dissolution of their marriage can lead to mutually arrived-at decisions that are best for the entire family. A professionally trained mediator will also be familiar with family law and will help to ensure that no rights are violated in the process. Parents, for example, may not mediate away the rights of their children.

Mediators in various specialities are offering their services to the Jewish community for an alternative dispute resolution centre now being formed. If you are a trained mediator willing to give of your time, or are in need of mediation services and cannot afford them, contact Jewish Family Services (722-2225).

Yom HaShoah commemoration is reminder of importance of unity among Jewish people

By Barbara Crook

Young people took centre stage at this year's Yom HaShoah commemoration, which was held May 11 at the Soloway JCC.

The annual Shoah (Holocaust) Remembrance Day always includes participation by children and youth. But this year they were at the heart of the ceremony, as 15 Jewish high school students performed We Fought Back, a series of songs and vignettes about the Holocaust.

"I wanted an even stronger component of young people this year," says Fuzzy Teitelbaum, chair of the Shoah (Holocaust) Remembrance Committee, who also wrote the material for the students' presentation and directed it with Shirley Schildkraut of Yitzhak Rabin High School.

"It started off many years ago as a small play I did at Hillel Academy, and we added more and more parts for these kids."

The play included stories from the ghettos and the camps, songs in Yiddish and English, wrenching tales of death and inspiring tales of resistance.

"Resistance was more than bullets," Teitelbaum said in her opening speech. "Resistance was a flame, was singing, was creating poetry, baking matzohs,

"Daily survival became a form of resistance. There were those who smuggled dynamite in Auschwitz. There were those who smuggled messages in and out of the ghettos. There were those who hid their children with Gentiles, in monasteries and convents, who hid their children white in the camps.

"I envisage heroes and heroines, I envisage partisans, I envisage underground arms."

Five of the six commemorative candles, each representing a million of the six million Jews killed in the Shoah, were lit by survivors:

- Dr. Erwin Koranyi, a member of the Budapest underground, who survived with a visa issued by Raoul Wallenberg

- Lillian Matyas, who escaped the Horanyi Labour Camp and remained in the Budapest Ghetto until liberation;

- Vera Kovesi, survivor of the Columbus internment camp in Budapest;

- Pepi Guiot-Zuckerbrodt, who survived as a Christian child in a Belgian convent;

- David Shentow, survivor of Auschwitz and Dachau, and one of 5,000 slave labourers sent to Warsaw to remove the rubble after the destruction of the Ghetto.

The sixth candle was lit by David Sultan, Ambassador of the State of Israel, and Barbara Farber, immediate

What's a nice Jewish girl doing in therapy, anyway?

By Kinneret Globerman

When Harriet Lerner was five years old, she decided she would become a therapist. Not an obvious profession for such a young Jewish girl, but then neither is being a best-selling author. Yet Lerner has been hugely successful at both vocations. A clinical psychologist and therapist at the Menninger Clinic in Kansas, Dr. (PhD) Lerner is also the author of a trilogy of self-help books that begin with a dance. The Dance of Anger, The Dance of Intimacy and The Dance of Deception have sold more than three million copies and have been translated into more than 30 foreign editions.

Her newest contribution to the psychology genre is The Mother Dance: How Children Change Your Life. It has already sold 100,000 copies in the US alone and been translated into 15 languages since its initial printing three years ago. All of her books are the by-products of years spent as a practicing psychologist and therapist and, more recently, as an advice columnist for New Woman magazine.

Harriet Lerner was born in 1944, in Brooklyn, New York. Her parents, Rose and Archie Goldhor, were first-generation Americans whose own parents were Russian-Jewish immigrants. It was Rose who inadvertently set her younger daughter on her course to helping women better understand themselves. When Harriet and her older sister Susan were tots, their mother was able to obtain a health insurance policy that allowed the girls to visit a therapist - weekly - for sessions that cost only $1.

"My mother started me and my sister in therapy at the age of two. Goodness knows what I talked about or if I was talking at all," she says in an interview from her home in Topeka, Kansas. And it's not that Lerner's mother thought there was anything wrong with her daughters. Rather, Rose - progressive thinker that she was - saw therapy as a "learning opportunity".

"Although we were quite poor during much of my growing up years in Brooklyn, my mother always made sure that Susan and I had four things: a therapist; good shoes, and I don't mean stylish; firm, quality mattresses; and a top pediatrician - none other than Doctor Benjamin Spock, who was also a bargain."

It was obviously Lerner's "therapeutic" experience that planted the seeds of her desire to become a therapist. With a BA in psychology and Indian studies from the University of Wisconsin at Madison, an MA in educational psychology from the Teacher's College of Columbia University, and a PhD in clinical psychology from the City University of New York, Lerner had all of the tools she needed to make her goal a reality.

At City University, she also met her future husband, Steve Lerner, also a clinical psychologist. Following graduation, the couple moved to San Francisco for their post-doctoral internship at Mount Zion Hospital. Then, in 1972, they moved to Topeka, Kansas for a two-year post-doctoral training program at the renowned Menninger Foundation.

"We always planned to move back to the coast," Lerner says. "But two years in Topeka turned into two decades [and more]."

With a population of somewhere in the neighbourhood of 120,000 and 200 churches in the county, Topeka is an unlikely place for a big-city Jew to end up. Topeka has a relatively small Jewish population and only one synagogue with about 200 or so families. Although Lerner grew up without a Jewish education, and without observing any traditions or rituals, the Lerners joined the shul when husband Steve took to teaching Hebrew classes every Sunday. Both sons, Matthew and Ben, were Bar Mitzvahed.

"Moving to Topeka made me a better Jew, because it was consciousness-raising to be a rarity," says Lerner. "Growing up in Brooklyn, New York, I simply assumed everybody was Jewish. In contrast, I was rearing my own sons in public schools where they were the only Jews in their class. So being Jewish started to loom larger in my identity."

Working at the Menninger Foundation kept Lerner busy enough. She didn't set out to be a popular (or populist) writer. She first started publishing in scientific and scholarly journals. It wasn't until her first "dance" book, The Dance of Anger, when she turned to the trade publication industry and tried her hand at writing "plain English" for "just plain folks" - a transition that did not come easily. But it did pay off, even though she worried that her colleagues would write her off, and even as she wondered whether a book was a powerful enough catalyst for changing a person's life. The response from her readers has encouraged her to continue writing self-help books from a women's psychological perspective.

Her works demystify relationships and call into question societal myths, and her latest book is no exception. It is a frank, humourous look at the experience of motherhood from pregnancy to empty nest. In it, she challenges all of the mothering myths that cause anxiety, worry, guilt and self-condemnation in mothers everywhere. Myths that it's a mother's fault if her child ends up a criminal or a

Newcomer enjoys warm reception

Dear Editor,

I had been in Ottawa for only three months when I received an invitation from the Ladies Reception Committee for Newcomers to a Newcomers Tea. This indicated to me how serious the community was about making newcomers feel at home.

On the day of the tea, at the beautiful home of Roz Kanigsberg, I was met by the committee members including the group's founder, Bea Hook. In true English style, tea was served in lovely china cups accompanied by party sandwiches, cookies and petits fours. I left having met 32 new women.

The Newcomers Committee is truly representative of the Ottawa Jewish community - warm, dedicated and caring. The next tea will be held on Sunday, June 4 and I highly recommend that if you are a newcomer to the city you should plan to attend.

JHS lecture series features talk on Jacquelin Holzman

Former Mayor Jacquelin Holzman will be the featured speaker of the Elliott Gluck Memorial Lecture Series sponsored by the Ottawa Jewish Historical Society. Ellyn Holzman will speak about her mother on Thursday, June 15 at 7:30 pm at Agudath Israel Congregation, 1400 Coldrey Avenue.

Jacquelin Holzman entered politics in 1982 and served three consecutive terms on Ottawa City Council and on the Council of the Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton as councillor for Richmond Ward. She was elected mayor in 1991 and served two terms until her retirement from office in 1997.

The 750-page "portable archive" to be fund-raiser for Holocaust education nationally

Chapters has launched The Holocaust Chronicle - A History in Words and Pictures in all stores coast-to-coast as a fund-raiser for B'nai Brith Canada's national Holocaust education programs. Selected Chapters stores hosted Holocaust Remembrance Day events on May 1 and 2 to launch the book.

The Holocaust Chronicle was conceived as a not-for-profit venture by its publisher, Louis Weber of Publications International, Ltd. "As the son of Polish Jews, I was frequently reminded of the atrocities that had taken place during the war," says Weber. "Publishing The Holocaust Chronicle took root in my mind many years ago, but as the book began to take shape, I came to see it as more than an accounting of our history. I hope this book will increase public awareness of the Holocaust."

The Holocaust Chronicle is being sold through Chapters stores for $20.00, a remarkable price considering the book's superb quality, design and scholarship. Both Chapters and Weber are covering only their actual costs of the book, with all net profits from sales, five dollars from each book, to be donated to B'nai Brith Canada.

The Holocaust Chronicle, written and fact-checked by top Holocaust historians, features over 2,000 photographs, most never before published in book form. The 750-page book was written to be a portable archive: a comprehensive and compelling history of the Holocaust that gives names, faces and stories to victims, resisters and perpetrators. The book also features a 3,000-item time line that runs through the entire book, thoroughly documenting the events that transpired before, during and after the Holocaust.

B'nai Brith Canada was chosen as the fund-raising recipient by Chapters because of the organization's extensive, national educational programs plus its Holocaust and Hope Student Study Tour for Canadian high school students. B'nai Brith Canada will be establishing a special endowment from the proceeds of sales of the book to be used for Holocaust education.

In her professional and volunteer life before politics, she was a planner and developer of housing, employment and rehabilitation services for the elderly and people with disabilities. She was involved in the establishment of Tamir, served as chair of both the Jewish Social Services Council and the Temple Israel Building Committee and was president of the National Council of Jewish Women.

As chair of the Ottawa Congress Centre, since April 1998, Jackie has a leadership role in directing the business and financial affairs of the operation.

In June 1998, the University of Ottawa awarded Jackie an honorary doctorate. She recently co-authored Ottawa

Then & Now, a 200-year retrospective of Canada's capital city featuring over 800 archival and contemporary photographs.

In November 1999, the Minister of National Defence announced her appointment as the honorary lieutenant colonel of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa.

A native Ottawa, Jackie is married to John Rutherford, who has four children and four grandchildren.

The community is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

The second Young Jewish Leadership Diplomatic Seminar

The Young Jewish Leadership Diplomatic Seminar is an exciting new venture of the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

The Seminar was first run in July 1999 with 35 participants from 16 countries around the world. This year's Seminar is scheduled from July 23 to August 11.

The objectives of this program are multifold, with its foremost goal being to enhance the relationship between young Jewish leadership and the State of Israel. The Seminar offers an in-depth exploration of the many facets of the Israeli agenda, including the peace process, national security, economy, culture and society, Jewish life in Israel and more.

The Seminar is fully sponsored by the Israeli Ministry of Foreign Affairs, covering full board and lodging, excursions and other costs. Participants are, however, responsible for covering their flight costs to and from Israel. Applicants must be university graduates and no older than 35. The operative language of the Seminar is English. For further information and an application, contact David Cooper at the Embassy of Israel (567-6450). Application deadline is June 1, 2000.

Of JNF's Golden Book, Stamps and the ubiquitous Blue Box

In 1901, one month after the Fifth Zionist Congress in Basel, Switzerland, authorized the establishment of JNF, Yona (Johann) Kremenezky was appointed its head. Kremenezky set to work with a will.

Kremenezky was born in Odessa in 1850 but left Russia at an early age for Vienna. There he studied the then new field of electrical engineering, ultimately starting a prosperous electrical products factory.

When word of Hibat Zion reached Vienna, Kremenezky was among the earliest members of the local chapter. He was also one of the first people before whom Theodor Herzl, also of Vienna, prodded his idea for a world Zionist movement. An entry in Herzl's diary in 1896 notes three of Kremenezky's proposals: that a chemical industry be set up on the shores of the Dead Sea, that the country be supplied with electricity from hydro-electric plants, and that afforestation be undertaken as part of a broad national endeavour.

Kremenezky's first acts as chairman were to set up a head office in Vienna, look for way to publicize JNF among Zionists and make it a popular mass institution to raise funds for the implementation of its aims.

To this end, he initiated the Golden Book which records special moments in the lives of inscribers, or those they wish honoured - paid inscriptions which, to this day, remain a coveted badge throughout the Jewish world.

Kremenezky also began publishing JNF stamps, the proceeds of which went to the fund. These stamps were affixed to official Zionist documents as well as all personal and business letters. The first stamp, issued in 1902, displayed the Star of David and the name 'Zion'. Other colourful, well-designed stamps followed bearing the portraits of famous personalities or pictures of projects undertaken in Palestine. Over the years, thousands of JNF stamps have been issued. They were even used as the official postage of the nascent State of Israel in 1948.

Kremenezky also wisely adopted the suggestion of a small-town Galician bank-clerk, Haim Kleinman, who had written to the Zionist movement's newspaper, 'Die Welt' about placing a collection box in every Jewish home, encouraging contributions to the Jewish National Fund at every opportunity. Thus was the Blue Box born. The JNF Blue Box soon was a fixture in Jewish homes throughout the Diaspora, generating funds to redeem the land and forging a link of love between Diaspora Jewry and the Land of Israel.

Vigil in support of Iranian Jews

By Diane Koven

Freedom means many things to many people. Strangely enough, for 13 members of the Ottawa Jewish community, freedom recently meant the ability to don prison garb, walk with balls and chains, all under the scrutiny of the local police - and then to remove the clothing and return to their regular workaday lives.

Such was the scene for downtown office workers out for a lunchtime stroll on Metcalfe Street on May 3 when a dramatic visual presentation of the plight of the 13 Jewish Iranian prisoners took place across the street from the Iranian Embassy. For the hour between noon and 1:00 pm, the costumed protesters and several other sympathizers paraded with placards and chanted for freedom.

Rabbi Reuven Bulka was one of the "prisoners" marching in the protest. "We are holding this vigil," he said, "to let Iran know that we are relentless in our resolve, and will not rest until the 13 accused spies are released."

The Iranians have been held for over a year on charges of spying for Israel and the United States. The accused, including Jewish community leaders, shopkeepers and a 17-year-old student, are finally having their cases heard. The judge in the court, however, is also the chief investigator, the prosecutor, and has the final say on the appointment of defence lawyers. "The charges are preposterous beyond words," said Bulka, "and have placed the Jewish community of Shiraz in turmoil. We owe it to them to protest this outrage until that beleaguered community can once again live in peace and tranquility."

The recent demonstration was sponsored by the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa/Vaad Ha'ir, Canadian Jewish Congress and B'nai Brith Canada. Rubin Friedman, national communications director of Canadian Jewish Congress, said: "We will do everything we can to ensure the world stays focused on their plight and to seek their speedy release."

Please note: For the duration of the trial, a noon vigil will take place outside the Embassy of Iran from Monday to Thursday. The Jewish community is urged to make every effort to take part.

What's a nice Jewish girl doing in therapy, anyway?

serial killer or gay; that "good" mothers are in control of their children at all times. Myths that only "bad" mothers hate their kids (from time to time). Myths that all mothers are maternal and if they're not, there's something wrong with them. In fact, Lerner wanted none of her own children until she had them.

"To opt for kids is to opt for chaos, complexity, turbulence, and truth," she writes in her book. "Kids will make you love them in a way you never thought possible. They will also confront you with all the painful, unsavoury emotions that humans put so much energy into trying to avoid. Children will teach you about yourself [author's emphasis] ... that you are capable of deep compassion, and also that you are definitely not the nice, calm, competent, clear-thinking, highly-evolved person you fancied yourself to be before you became a mother." In fact, Lerner's own son Ben admonishes her behaviour at times, questioning her actions (or reactions!) when she is supposed to know better, being the expert.

Strange that she would write a self-help book when she is generally distrustful of the whole self-help genre. There are too many so-called experts out there, she feels, giving all kinds of contradictory advice. Mothers are full of self-doubt and guilt as it is and shouldn't be paying for books that make them feel even more inadequate. As well, theories and advice change with the times.

"Mothers must realize that advice to women changes dramatically with the social and economic climate of the day, and that ultimately every woman is the best expert on her own self," she says. "So women should approach these books with a healthy degree of skepticism."

The best-laid plans are ineffectual when one has kids because anything can happen and usually does. As she writes in her book: "Life doesn't go the way we expect or plan, and nobody's perfect, not ourselves or our children. Or as Elizabeth Kubler-Ross put it: 'I'm not OK, you're not OK, and that's OK.'"

It took Lerner a lot of courage to write so frankly about her experience especially own weaknesses as a parent, her missteps and even failures. Her colleagues at the Menninger Clinic were not especially supportive of her candor and felt that it would lessen her authority and credibility as a national expert in the psychology of women to be so forthcoming.

"It has been extremely gratifying that my readers unanimously have said that the part of the book that was most helpful, even more than the advice, was my openness in sharing my own problems, limitations and vulnerabilities.

"I'm 55 years old and I figure that I'm at an age where I really need to be very clear and very brave about what I want to do in the world and not worry about other people's reactions, to write what I'm going to write and let the cards fall where they may. "So I did write what I wanted to write and I'm glad because the book has become a national best-seller and the response has been so warm."

What really relieved her was the response from her sons who hadn't read the manuscript as it was being written and had just taken it on faith that their mother would omit any embarrassing situations. The day she was heading out on tour, anxious about the reception response, the doorbell rang. She opened it to find a delivery man holding a bouquet of "tacky" flowers.

"I thought, 'Who is sending me these tacky flowers?' but it turned out the flowers were from Matt and Ben. They had never before or after – this was like a first – sent me flowers."

The accompanying card read: "Congratulations! You couldn't have done it without us."

"It was very cute, and then Ben called up and demanded 50% of my royalty cheque because he had figured so largely [in the book]. I told him, 'No way!'

"So I was very, very relieved. It's a hard thing, when you're an author, to write about the people you love; if you owe it to yourself and your readers to always be honest, and you owe it to your family to consider their feelings, to protect them and to omit, not to distort."

NOTE: Dr. Harriet Lerner was recently in Ottawa to talk about her latest book. The event was sponsored by the Ottawa Chapter of the Canadian Friends of Hebrew University.

Author Talks series at SJCC

A bubbie's Meiseh that became a novel ... Jacqueline Park

We all know a bubbie with a story or two to tell. But how many bubbies' stories become novels? Jacqueline Park, professor emerita at NYU, will be speak about her book The Secret Book of Grazia dei Rossi at the Soloway Jewish Community Centre on May 31 at 1:30 pm, as part of the Greenberg Families Library "Author Talks" series. In particular, Park will speak about Jews of the Italian Renaissance and what drew her to this particular subject.

The Secret Book of Grazia dei Rossi is a sweeping tale of intrigue and romance set against the backdrop of religious persecution and papal politics of the Italian Renaissance. It tells the story of Grazia dei Rossi, heiress to a Jewish banking dynasty and her lover, a Christian lord. The book was inspired by two letters Park found in a library.

After reading Shlomo Simonson's History of the Jews of Mantua, Park stumbled across an intriguing footnote suggesting a forbidden romance between Pacienza Pontremoli, a Jew, and his Catholic love. With her curiosity piqued, Park went to the New York Public Library to research further and found two defunct Italian-Jewish journals on microfilm that contained correspondence between Pontremoli and Isabella D'Este, the daughter of a Catholic aristocrat.

In these letters, D'Este urged Pontremoli to give up his attachment to Judaism and convert to Christianity so that she could marry him. The contents of these letters took hold of Park's imagination. She believed what she had stumbled upon was the making of a good, sweeping novel. It inspired her to spend the next 10 years writing what was to become The Secret Book of Grazia dei Rossi, which was published in 1998, when Park was 72 years of age.

Admission for Soloway JCC and Library members is $5.00; and $8.00 for non-members.

For further information, contact the Greenberg Families Library (798-9818, ext. 245).

Anti-semitism, Social Credit and the Jewish response

A hostile, anti-Jewish campaign was undertaken by the Social Credit during the '30s and '40s. Ottawa author, Dr. Janine Stigell, exposes this crucial, yet previously neglected part of Social Credit history in her recently published book Social Discredit: Anti-semitism, Social Credit and the Jewish Response. As part of the Greenberg Families Library Author Talks series, Stigell will discuss her book at the Soloway Jewish Community Centre on Monday, June 5 at 7:30 pm.

After the Holocaust, most Canadians acknowledged the perils of race hatred. The Social Credit however, intensified its anti-Semitic campaign. As premier of Alberta from 1943 to 1968, Ernest Manning (father of Preston Manning) presided over a party and government that blatantly propagated a campaign of Jew hatred. And in this respect, Ernest Manning was complicitous in allowing anti-Semitism to form an integral part of Social Credit propaganda.

Stigell's book examines Social Credit's anti-Semitic propaganda, Ernest Manning's role, and the reaction of Canadian Jewish Congress. She details their mutual antagonism and explores why Congress was unable to stop Social Credit's blatant defamation. Stigell argues that Congress's ineffective response represented a broader problem in which passivity and belief in "quiet diplomacy" served only to further undermine many of its efforts to combat intolerance.

Social Discredit illustrates the considerable changes that both Social Credit and Congress experienced in the post-war period, as Social Credit abandoned its anti-Semitic trappings and Congress gradually adopted an assertive and pugnacious public relations philosophy that made it a champion of human rights in Canada.

Tickets are $5 for Soloway JCC and Greenberg Families Library members and $8.00 for non-members. For tickets call (798-9818, ext. 295).

Na'amot Ozma celebrates Pesach at the 4th Annual Women's Seder

By Jenny Shinder

Lasagna made of matzah? Farfel kugels? Charoset? Whoever dreamed of eating such dishes before Pesach? That's exactly what a group of more than 20 women did at Na'amot Ozma's fourth annual Women's Seder.

Only days before Pesach, the group gathered at the home of Andrea Malek and, with an original women's adaptation of the Haggadah in hand prepared by Na'amot members, the Seder began.

In many ways, the women's Seder represents what the Na'amot group is all about. Just as they did at the Seder, where they ate, drank, sang, laughed and chatted, one goal of the chapter is to give young women in the community the opportunity to get together in a social setting where they can simply enjoy one another's company.

At the same time, the group also has a social responsibility. Sitting around the Seder table, celebrating the freedom of the Jews from Egyptian slavery, was a reminder of the goal Jewish women have to continue making a difference in the lives of others.

For more information on Na'amot, call Ilana Albert-Novick (225-2662).

Beth Shalom presents program on Ethiopian Jewry

Acheinu, Acheinu kol beit Yisroel (our brothers, our brothers the entire family of Israel) is the theme of a special program open to the public scheduled to take place on Sunday, May 28 at 4:30 pm following the Loblaw UJA Walkathon 2000. The Jewish Ethiopian community and Beth Shalom Congregation will be showcasing an exhibit of Jewish Ethiopian culture at the synagogue, 151 Chapel Street.

For many centuries, Beta Israel, formerly known as "Falasha," were the forgotten Jews. Then, in a series of contemporary miracles, they were brought to Israel through Operation Solomon.

Most western Jews know little about Ethiopian Jewry. This is an opportunity to see an exhibit of artifacts, listen to music, sample kosher Ethiopian food and learn about Operation Solomon from someone who was there. There will also be a brief memorial service for all those who never made it to the Promised Land. The event is free of charge.

Families get "In-Line" to skate!

Do you roll out of bed Sunday mornings and think to yourself ... what am I going to do with the kids today?

Have you become bored with your usual Sunday routine?

If you answered yes to both questions ... have we got something for you!

Grab your roller blades, helmet, elbow and knee pads, wrist guards and of course your kids, and head down to the SJCC for the latest craze in healthy, fun family activities ... FAMILY IN-LINE SKATING

The Soloway JCC is offering a "beginner level" FAMILY IN-LINE SKATING PROGRAM program to parents and children ages 6 and up beginning Sunday, July 9th through to August 27, from 10:30 to 11:30 am.

All instructors are ICP Canada certified and members of ISA International In-line Skating Association. They will teach parents and kids the proper in-line skating technique, proper skating stance, safe falling, stopping, road safety and skate maintenance. The full eight-week session will include an endurance testing day, path skate day, relay race day and much more. The program will also cover the "Rules of The Road". Protective equipment is mandatory. Starting Sunday, July 9th, come to the Soloway Jewish Community Centre and enjoy your summer Sundays as they are meant to be enjoyed ... with family, outdoors, doing something healthy, physical and exceedingly fun!

The cost for FAMILY IN-LINE SKATING is $65 for a parent and one child who are members (or $32.50 each) and $90 for non-members (or $45 each). Registration begins June 5th. For further information, please call the SJCC's Fitness/Aerobics Manager, Carla Genger at 798-9818, ext. 278.

Soloway JCC announces Vered Israel Cultural Program

Sara and Zev Vered

The Soloway Jewish Community Centre is pleased to announce the official establishment of the Vered Israel Cultural Program.

In honour of Sara and Zev Vered's 50th anniversary, the Vered Families, in conjunction with the Soloway JCC, have established this special program to help foster Israeli culture within the Ottawa Jewish community.

"There is a vital Jewish culture in Israel. The roots of our Jewish traditions began there," says Sara Vered. "It is our hope that by establishing this cultural program we will create a greater understanding of Diaspora Jews and Jews of Israel."

The Vered Israel Cultural Program plans to create programs in association with the Embassy of Israel and others that showcase Israeli literature, art and music.

For further information or organizational participation, please call Israeli Programming Coordinator, Ruth Ben-Simon at 798-9818, ext. 276.

SOLOWAY JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTRE An important invitation to our members

The Soloway JCC is currently studying the feasibility of offering a variety of services on Saturday afternoons. In order for the SJCC Board of Directors to receive recommendations and to make a decision which reflects the needs and wishes of the membership, your input is vital!

Your opinions on this very important subject are essential in arriving at a decision which is satisfactory to the community. Please register to be part of our consultation process, the first step being a series of focus group discussions designed for your age group.

"Directional" changes at the Ganon Preschool

Ganon Preschool Director, Brenda Levine recently announced her decision to leave the Soloway Jewish Community Centre's preschool, as she is pregnant with her first child. As the school's Director, the Ganon Preschool continued to thrive during the 1999-2000 school year. The Soloway Jewish Community Centre would like to wish her and Jason a hearty Mazel Tov on their pending addition and wish them the best of luck.

Taking over the helm from Brenda is a familiar and highly qualified individual, the Ganon's Bereshit teacher for the last three years, Jennifer DeVries. Jennifer's gentle and loving nature with children has always been apparent. The manner in which she works truly exemplifies the spirit and philosophy of the preschool. Jennifer has watched the school grow from the first day it opened and is very excited to take on the challenge of helping to shape its path. "I am so pleased and excited to begin a new year and a new position as the Ganon Preschool Director," says Jennifer DeVries. "The staff and the parents alike are wonderful and supportive. I feel very fortunate to be a part of this great school and community."

Jennifer will officially take over the helm in June with Brenda lending transitional support through the Fall. Along side Jennifer each step of the way will be the always strong and committed staff of teachers. While we are sorry to be losing Suzi Sauve next year, we are excited to welcome Heather Firn on board as a new teacher. Rounding out the team will be the loving and familiar faces of Morah Debra Viner, Morah Ann-Lynn Rapoport, and Cantor Berlolo.

Contagious Camp Carnival brings summer camp spirit

If you happened to come by the SJCC on Sunday April 30th between 10 am and 2 pm, you probably noticed things "looking" and "soundin'" a little different. A 33 foot Titanic Slide, 35 foot Hide'n'Slide Dragon, Mega Bouncer and carnival games took up most of the front parking lot, while the electrifying sounds of DJ's extraordinaire - Mandell Entertainment filled the air.

The Soloway JCC's Camp Carnival got into full tilt Sunday, April 30th at 10 am, with over 300 people getting into the "summer camp" spirit. A steady stream of smiling young faces slid down the Titanic's port and starboard, while heads, legs and arms were enthusiastically swallowed up by the Hide'n'Slide Dragon. A "chilly hot hot" conga-line zipped and zigged its way through the parking lot, and kids and parent of all ages were gettin' jiggy to the music.

Sticky blue cotton candy, a rainbow of smores, popcorn, potato chips, and mustard and ketchup filled hotdogs were consumed in great quantities. Kids and parents alike took their best shots at each of the carnival games and an energized group of camp staff were on hand meeting and greeting everyone who attended.

As promised, the SJCC Summer Camps 2000 Carnival was a major league contagious success! And this is only a taste of what's to come.

A memorable year for B'nai Brith boys

By Danny Chodos,
President of B'nai Brith

Our highly successful programming year has come to an end and the time has come to reflect on all that BBYO Boys have accomplished in 1999-2000. We currently have 38 members in the chapter, the highest membership total in years!

The 1999-2000 programming year was filled with a wide variety of activities that covered everything from athletics to Judaism to community service. A hockey tournament, frat night, Mexican pool party, basketball practices, Super Bowl Party, Le Tour de Nortel and a program on alcohol awareness were just a few of the exciting programs offered.

I encourage every teenage Jew to give BBYO a shot. The young men and women in the organization are a supportive and friendly group. It has been a great experience for me and will undoubtedly continue to be a wonderful experience for all those who participate.

Walkathon - an event for all ages to share ...

The causes are serious, but the event is a chance for Jewish community members of all ages to come out and share a day of fresh air, fun and fellowship.

The team relay is one of this year's new events. Each five-person team has to walk or run five kilometres - a kilometre per person - and each team member is asked to raise at least $36, for a minimum team contribution of $180.

"There are three serious running teams that I know of, but most of them are just doing it to bond and participate in the event," says Lipsky Cracower.

Adds Allan Cracower: "If people don't have a team to join, they can contact us and we'll find them a team."

Also new this year is the Apache Relay for kids of six and over. The afternoon event features two teams tackling such challenges as potato sack races, basketball and soccer shooting, watermelon eating, human pyramids, card counting and a three-legged race.

driven was known to all as Lorry.

Although the Roger Greenberg family ultimately achieved prominence and success as real estate developers under the name Minto Construction Limited (now Minto Developments Inc.), neither Lorry nor his siblings ever forgot their humble beginnings, the importance of family, nor their strong ties to Judaism and the Jewish community.

Lorry retired from the family business in 1982 to devote himself to making a difference in the Jewish and general communities. He succeeded admirably. Many local agencies and organizations owe their success to Lorry's persistence and drive.

His stellar political career began when he was appointed as alderman for Wellington Ward in 1968 to complete the term of office of the late Alderman Lionel O'Connor. That career culminated in his election as mayor of Ottawa in 1974.

Unfortunately, he served only one term as mayor before stepping down in 1978 after suffering a serious heart attack.

In 1980, Lorry turned his full attention to the Jewish community. Long active in

An evening of folklore, fellowship and fun

By Terry Schwarfeld

A fascinating program is being presented at the spring general meeting of Ottawa Hadassah-WIZO. Folklorist, Maxine Miska, senior manager of programming at the Soloway Jewish Community Centre, will speak on "The Importance of Folklore for the Richness of Life" on Monday, June 12, at 7:30 pm at Temple Israel, 1301 Prince of Wales Drive.

This meeting is also an opportunity to recognize the many Hadassah-WIZO members who have worked so hard this year at the chapter and city levels. The Lilian Freiman Cup is presented to the chapter which demonstrates the greatest progress and initiative over the course of the year.

The Sadie Shapero Memorial Trophy is presented to a new member for her outstanding contribution to Ottawa Hadassah-WIZO. In addition, there are many women who are active and dedicated at their chapter level and they are acknowledged with an Esther award.

“Music as Memory of the Inexpressible: The Composers of Terezin” with Jean-Jacques Van Vlasselaer at the Soloway JCC

The Greenberg Families Library and the Holocaust Remembrance Committee will present noted music critic and lecturer Jean-Jacques Van Vlasselaer speaking on Music as Memory of the Inexpressible: The Composers of Terezin. This program will take place at the Soloway Jewish Community Centre on June 11 at 7:00 pm.

This special evening with Carleton University Professor Van Vlasselaer will include musical excerpts and highlights of the work of composers Viktor Ullmann, Gideon Klein, Zygmund Shul, Pavel Haas and Hans Krass.

Van Vlasselaer's very popular Music Appreciation Series offered at the SJCC this past fall, has made him a familiar and welcomed face around the Centre.

Since 1970, Van Vlasselaer has been the vice-president of the International Music Press Association. He has written over 3500 reviews on classical music, opera, dance and ballet as well as on more general subjects. For more than two decades he has introduced the NACO concerts at the National Arts Centre. He is currently preparing a book on the Austrian composer Viktor Ullmann.

Tickets at $8.00 for SJCC and Library members and $10.00 for non-members are available by calling (798-9818, ext. 295).

Barbara Farber, chair of the Selection Committee.

Established in 1988, the Freiman Family Young Leadership Award recognizes a member of the Ottawa Jewish community under the age of 40 who, as a young leader, has contributed actively to the Jewish community. The award will be presented at the Annual Meeting of the Community on Wednesday, June 7.

“Robert and I had decided I would be a stay-at-home mom,” Leiba laughs. “But I’m a high energy person. I was used to leaving the house at 7 a.m. to work for my Dad and after just a few months I got the itch to be involved in something again. When I got the phone call from Machzikei Hadas Sisterhood, it was as if someone knew how I was feeling and came to see me.” Three years later, at age 26, Leiba Krantzberg was installed as the youngest-ever president of Machzikei Hadas Sisterhood.

Leiba chaired the highly successful 1997 Machzikei Hadas fund-raiser featuring psychologist and advice-guru, Dr. Laura Schlessinger. Two years later, in 1999, she chaired her congregation’s 25th Anniversary Celebration Gala. She also has chaired the Sisterhood’s Annual Strawberry Tea.

Leiba has been serving on both the Hillel Academy PTA board and the Ottawa Talmud Torah board since 1995. She is a past member of the Jewish Community Centre board and past chair of the JCC Day Camp Committee. Alongtime, dedicated canvasser for Ottawa UJA, in 1999 Leiba assumed responsibilities as a “conector” for UJA Ottawa Women’s Division’s Connections event.

Leiba is currently the co-president of the Hillel Academy PTA and co-chair of the Hillel Academy Lottery. She wears two hats — those of fund-raising chair and chair of the Public Relations Committee — in her role as a member of the executive committee of the Ottawa Talmud Torah board. As well, she sits on the executive of Congregation Machzikei Hadas and is a member of Women’s Division, State of Israel Bonds.

What makes this effervescent wife and mother of two give so generously of her time and energy? “I do it because I love this community,” Leiba says. “I love living in Ottawa. You know, I have friends living in big cities who do things for their community but somehow they don’t have the feeling of connectedness to community that we have in Ottawa.”

The daughter of Jack and Linda Smith and the late Inez Smith, Leiba grew up in a family that always played an integral role in Ottawa Jewish life.

“Leiba’s unique style and passion make her a role model for other young members of our community,” says Audrey Kreisman, who placed Leiba’s name in nomination.

Her proud husband, Robert, is delighted at the public recognition being accorded his wife. “Leiba is the first to say ‘yes’ to a worthy cause and she always gives 110 percent to herself to doing the job,” he says.

Leiba and Robert Krantzberg have two children, Daniel, nine and Liana, seven

SPECIAL REPORTKehila Task Force

Turning awareness into action

"No one person can change the whole world for the better; but each is needed, for each is a bit different - just as one leaf is different from others on the tree, yet all are needed for complete foliage"

- Anonymous

The Kehila Task Force Opening Conference last December raised awareness of the problems that low income Jews face. On March 30, over 65 community leaders and community members attended the second Kehila Conference with the goal of turning awareness into ideas for action.

Vaad President Stephen Greenberg stressed that the needs of those less fortunate have been and continue to be a major priority in raising and distributing funds in Ottawa and announced specific actions that the Vaad has taken or will undertake in response to Kehila.

A Hot Line has been created where low income Jews or community members can call to get more information about the Kehila initiative (798-4696, ext. 255). A council of Jewish Family Services is being formed with Jewish Family Services to match unemployed and under-employed Jews with opportunities in their organizations. The Vaad will organize a training program to help front line staff in agencies to effectively relate to those experiencing financial problems. A similar training program will also be developed for community leaders.

Greenberg announced that the Vaad is committed to continue the Kehila effort after the Task Force completes its work and that the Vaad and the Kehila Steering Committee will work together to outline the next steps for doing so.

Rona Shaffran-Tannenbaum, the chair of the Kehila Task Force, expressed her appreciation for the enthusiasm and support that people in the community are bringing to the Kehila effort. "We are thrilled with the momentum so far. It is gratifying that we have such wide participation - from all the shuls, all of the schools, all the elements of the community. The Kehila process is as much about community building as it is about solving the problems that low income Jews face. We see different parts of the community pulling together in a very warm and effective way to achieve the common goal of better integrating and serving low income Jews."

Shaffran-Tannenbaum reported that the Task Force has involved low income Jews in the Kehila process: "We interviewed low-income Jews last summer to understand their view of the problem. Over the past few months, we have reached out to these people and to other low income Jews to engage them in getting more directly involved in finding solutions to the problems. Let's be sure that the actions the community undertakes in response to Kehila are relevant and make sense in solving the problems that low-income Jews face."

Mitchell Shack, a consultant with Deloitte and Touche and a member of the Kehila Steering Committee, led the group through a very engaging exercise where individuals were invited to put forward specific action ideas that would reduce the barriers to participation that low income Jews identified. Fifteen people came forward and proposed excellent ideas. Participants developed these ideas further over the course of the evening. The ideas, which will be developed further for implementation, are summarized at the end of this report.

Shaffran-Tannenbaum reported that a community action plan will be produced by June containing the ideas identified on March 30 as well as individual action plans from each organization in the Jewish community. Each community organization was asked to complete an action plan outlining what actions it intends to take to better serve, reach out to and improve service to low-income Jews.

Initiatives in the community action plan will include those that can be accomplished within existing resources and those that need new funding. Actions will be undertaken in three time frames - now, within 12 months, and more than 12 months. For initiatives needing new funding, the Kehila Steering Committee will work jointly with the Priority and Planning Committee to identify priorities for funding evaluation.

Planning for implementation will begin after June. Thought will also be given to how to best evaluate the effectiveness of new initiatives.

The ideas that participants identified on March 30 are summarized below. They demonstrate great potential to make a difference in the lives of low income Jews in our community.

Drop-in centre

Create a drop in centre with soup kitchen for support and meeting and for creating linkages with others in the community. It would be volunteer oriented and run by people who use the service. Some staff support may be needed. In response to needs identified by low income Jews, a downtown location, on a major bus route, was suggested.

Employment (Referral and Vocational Development, and Small Business Funding)

Explore the creation of an employment referral agency serving local Jewish businesses. Stephen Greenberg noted that this idea is in progress. A complementary initiative was discussed in the creation of a vocational development group, as in Montreal and Toronto, to assist in improving employment potential. It would provide needs/skill assessment, employment counselling, job placement/referral services, job

SPECIAL REPORT

Kehila Task Force

Turning awareness into action

(Continued from page 15) coaching/mentoring, and development of employment skills. It could also support entrepreneurial training and small business funding. The concept could be refined to offer specialized programs for people with disabilities, older workers, and women. This initiative is seen as distinct from, but linked to, JFS. Potential partners include businesses, those who have experienced unemployment; JFS; Hebrew Free Loan Society; government (municipal, provincial, federal).

Streamlining the Qualification Process

Explore the streamlining of the qualification process for services to minimize repetition, ensure confidentiality and maximize the preservation of dignity. People are uncomfortable and embarrassed by requirements to be screened repeatedly for a subsidy by different community organizations. Centralizing the qualification process has significant implications in maintaining agency autonomy in setting criteria for eligibility and disbursing funds under its allocation, however, exploring a common application and developing appropriately sensitive and timely procedures to qualify requests for assistance at the agency level may offer more immediate benefits to those in need. This initiative would need significant time and energy to explore and qualify costs and benefits.

Improving Quality and Availability of Programming

Improve the quality and availability of programming for low income Jews by involving them more directly. It is desirable to make services fit people rather than people having to fit into systems. More client input in service planning is needed. We need to listen and identify what their needs are, where there are gaps and how we can be more flexible in meeting individual needs. This information must be used to better meet needs of the poor rather than protect individual agency interests. Agencies must be inclusive rather than exclusive, exhibit patience and continue to build trust.

Specific actions were discussed: volunteer drivers to community events that would also create a mentoring function; car pools; bus pass donations; greater access to community events (discounts and free tickets); greater access to Jewish education and the need for additional subsidies; subsidized clothing and furniture (vouchers, donations of kind); and filling in the gaps on government policy affecting those at Hillel Lodge (residents lose beds if they are hospitalized for more than 30 days and do not pay the per diem rate of $120 when their bed is vacant).

Nurturing Self-Reliance

Involving client groups in identifying their needs and encouraging involvement and a sense of self-determination in creating solutions. Establishing a mentor system to help low income Jews to greater autonomy and self-sufficiency would be an effective initiative. Developing a profile to identify those most able to reach self-sufficiency and researching success factors in other communities' experiences in this area were discussed. Developing an education/training program for mentors, recruiting them and evaluating what works well would follow. Wide community support from all agencies and the Vaad would be critical for success. This effort would be co-ordinated with the vocational development effort.

Engaging Low Income Jews to Participate

Developing an outreach program to identify and engage low income Jews who do not participate in Jewish life or avail themselves of support services was the subject of four sub-group discussions. Improving communication and information dissemination to reach "invisible" poor Jews was recommended. Specific initiatives of twinning active community members, including youth, as mentors and providing donations in kind (skills, services, i.e. legal, dental, counselling, tutoring) were tabled.

CICF features reading by author Gary Barwin

By Geri Migicovsky

On Sunday, June 25, the Annual General Meeting of the Canada-Israel Cultural Foundation will be held at the home of Dr. Norman and Myrna Barwin, 73 Loch Isle Road, at 7:00 pm. After the election of officers for the coming year, the program will feature a reading by writer, composer, performer, Gary Barwin.

Barwin is noted for exciting, humourous and engaging performances of his work and has given over 300 readings in Canada and the US. His stories are pure entertainment, surreal, breathtaking and beautiful.

After the reading the evening will continue around a bonfire on the beach. All members and prospective members are invited. RSVP to Ruth Calof (523-1600) or Geri Migicovsky (729-0333).

Charlotte Salomon,
LIFE? OR THEATRE?

Art Gallery of Ontario

"Take good care of it; it is my whole life."

Charlotte Salomon said these words as she entrusted her paintings to a local doctor, active in the French Resistance, just before she was captured and sent to Auschwitz. Aged 26 and four months into her pregnancy, she may have guessed but could not have known that within a few months she and her husband would perish.

Her "whole life" was an extensive collection of paintings illustrating a supposedly fictional story of a young girl and her family, but in fact an autobiographical account of her own life. The paintings were wrapped in two paper packages labeled "Property of Ottile Moore", her landlady, and they were kept safe. They were passed onto Charlotte's parents, who had survived the Holocaust by going underground with the Dutch Resistance. It is impossible to see this exhibition without feeling the pathos of viewing the "whole life" of this talented young woman who was a victim of her Jewishness.

Life? or Theatre?, the title Charlotte gave to her collective works, is now housed at the Jewish Historical Museum in Amsterdam. However, time and research have shown that these poignant works of art should be seen in a broader context. They therefore went to London, England last year and can now be seen at the Art Gallery of Ontario (AGO) in Toronto until July 9, 2000 before traveling to Boston and New York and then returning to Amsterdam.

The artist was far ahead of her time in conceiving this series as a multi-media event. She asks the viewer to imagine her sitting by the sea, painting to the music that enters into her mind. The cast of characters, thinly disguised friends and family with appropriately altered names, can be found on the opening page. The viewer reads the text, listens to the music and the narration as on the audio-guide, and follows the graphics as the story of the artist's personal fiction unfolds.

Her style is surprising in its van Gogh, Chagall, Dufy and German Expressionist influences, for these modern styles had been declared "degenerate" by Adolf Hitler, and all avant-garde teachers had been expelled from German schools. Nevertheless, for the short time that Charlotte Salomon was allowed to study, she had access to the outside world of art through the library that had not yet been censored.

Another remarkable feature of her work is her use of only the three primary colours - using a bright palette for happy events and a considerably darker one for sad episodes.

Salomon's parents had sent Charlotte to the south of France (mistakingly thinking she would be safe) to live with her grandparents after war broke out in 1939. The artist began Life? or Theatre? after she and her grandparents were released from their internment in a French concentration camp in 1940. It was written against a backdrop of a world gone mad but Charlotte was also hounded by internal demons - her grandmother committed suicide while she was staying with her and she discovered that her mother had not died of influenza, as she had been told, but that she had also committed suicide. Furthermore, she found out that six other members of her mother's family had taken their own lives.

Salomon, desperately trying to stay sane, worked feverishly until she completed this invaluable historical document but also one that is profoundly analytical about the universal experiences of life and the coming to terms with love and death.

It is tempting to make comparisons with Anne Frank's diary especially since the Franks were friends of Albert and Paula Salomon in Amsterdam. However, Salomon's series is different from the young girl's diary. It is a mature Charlotte's mother is telling her that when she dies she will come back as an angel and leave a letter on her daughter's window-sill to tell her what life is like in heaven. It is executed in bright blues, reds and yellows.

work of art, apparently naive, but actually intelligent and ambitious. Most significantly, it is conceived of as fiction rather than documentary fact, as the title, Life? or Theatre? informs us.

FROM SOUP TO NUTS

Old-fashioned cakes have stood the test of time

SOUP TO NUTS

DONNA KARLIN

Here are three recipes for old-fashioned cakes that have stood the test of time and continually remain favourites. They are wonderful for tea or brunch, freeze well and are always a huge hit!

Cranberry Coffee Cake

1 cup butter, at room temperature
1/4 cup sugar
2 eggs, lightly beaten
1 tsp vanilla
1 cup sour cream, at room temperature
2 cups flour
1/2 tsp baking soda
1 1/2 tsp baking powder
12 oz. can whole berry cranberry sauce
1 tsp cinnamon
1 cup chopped nuts (optional)

Preheat oven to 350°. Grease and flour a bundt pan. In a large mixing bowl, cream butter and sugar. Add eggs, vanilla, and sour cream; mix well. In another bowl, mix flour, baking soda, and baking powder. Blend wet and dry ingredients just until moistened. Don't over beat.

Spoon half of batter into pan. Mix cranberry sauce, cinnamon and nuts and spread over the batter in the pan. Spoon remaining batter on top.

Bake 55 minutes. Let cool completely before removing from pan. Serves 10-12.
Freezes well, wrapped airtight.

Applesauce Cake

2 cups flour
2 tsp baking soda
1 tsp baking powder
1 1/2 tsp cinnamon
1/2 tsp ground nutmeg
1/4 tsp ground cloves
1 cup raisins
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
1/4 lb unsalted butter, room temperature
1 cup sugar
1 egg
2 tsp vanilla extract
2 cups unsweetened applesauce
1 tbsp icing sugar for topping

Preheat oven to 350°. Grease and flour a 9x13" pan. In medium bowl, combine flour, baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves. In a small bowl, combine raisins and nuts. Stir in 1/4 cup of the flour mixture to coat. In larger mixer bowl, cream the butter until fluffy. Add the sugar and beat until blended. Beat in the egg and vanilla. Beat in dry ingredients one third at a time, alternating with applesauce, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Stir in raisin nut mixture. Pour into prepared pan and smooth top evenly. Bake 35 to 40 minutes until top springs back when lightly touched and tester inserted in centre comes out clean. Cool in pan on rack. Sift icing sugar over the top. Cut into squares and serve.

Old-fashioned Blackberry Cake

1 1/2 cups fresh blackberries
3 cups flour
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 tsp salt
1/2 tsp ground cloves
1/2 tsp cinnamon
1 1/2 sticks (6 oz) unsalted butter, melted

1 cup sour cream
3 eggs
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
2 tsp baking powder
1 tsp baking soda

Preheat oven to 350°. Grease and flour 10" bundt pan. Rinse berries and dry with paper towels. In a large mixing bowl, combine flour, sugar, salt, cloves and cinnamon. Stir well. Add melted butter, sour cream and eggs. With electric mixer, beat just to moisten. Add the blackberries and beat for one minute. Add pecans, baking powder and baking soda and beat just until blended. Pour into prepared pan and bake 55 to 60 minutes until tester inserted in the centre comes out clean. Cool in pan on rack for 20 minutes and then invert onto rack to cool completely.

KID LIT

Shavuot, a link to Pesach and ShabbatKID LIT

DEANNA SILVERMAN

Shavuot is officially our third "time of gladness." By counting Omer, it is celebrated 50 days after the second day of Pesach. The practice of counting Omer has led some scholars to consider Shavuot an auxiliary to Pesach rather than a holiday in its own right.

By rabbinic tradition, however, Shavuot commemorates the giving of the Ten Commandments at Mount Sinai. We know it has an even longer history as a thanksgiving celebration of the spring and summer's first fruit harvest.

So what do we do? In the diaspora, we acknowledge the agricultural side of the holiday but pay more attention to the religious. In Israel, especially on kibbutzim, the agricultural festival is emphasized.

But for all of us Shavuot is a dairy eating holiday and, because of the fourth commandment to "Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy," a link to both Pesach and Shabbat.

The Ten Commandments- For Jewish Children -

By Miriam Nerlove

Albert Whitman and Company 1999

Unpaged Ages 3-7

In The Ten Commandments author/illustrator Miriam Nerlove engages in time travel. Using simple narration she first takes us to ancient times for a fast reprise of slavery in Egypt, the Exodus, Mount Sinai, the Ten Commandments, the Golden Calf and the second set of commandments.

With the "ten rules for living" firmly in hand, Nerlove returns to the present to show the relevancy of the commandments. The commandments are counted off in English and Hebrew. Each is presented and accompanied by a brief explanatory lesson in how it should be obeyed.

Nerlove's full-colour illustrations are as straightforward and realistic as her text. A pleasant introduction to The Ten Commandments.

Unpaged Ages 4-8

The subtitle of Starlight and Candles, The Joys of the Sabbath says it all. Starlight and Candles celebrates the joy of parents and children spending time together, thankfully appreciating each other and God's world.

With tender, loving literary imagery, evocative illustrations and a dash of humour, Fran Manushkin and Jacqueline Chwast take Jake, Rosy, Mama and Papa from exciting anticipation of and preparations for Shabbat through to its peaceful, joyous observances ending with havdalah.

Along the way we "smell the scent of challah," learn that God celebrated the first Shabbat, greet the Sabbath Bride and angels, hear Grandma and Grandpa's memories of childhood Shabbats and enjoy a "shul that feels like one big Jewish family." Well done!

Let's Talk about the Shabbat

By Dorothy K. Kripke

Illustrated by Stacy Crossland and Joy Nelkin Weider
Alef Design Group 1999
60 pp. Ages 6-10

Let's Talk about the Shabbat is the latest addition to Dorothy Kripke's Let's Talk about ... series in which she discusses Judaism and Jewish values. In an introductory letter, Kripke personalizes her contact with readers and catches their attention by inviting them on a treasure hunt.

The treasures are the ideas, values, customs, observances and mystical motifs that are the essence of a holy Shabbat. Written as an easy-to-read chapter book, Kripke uses parables, poetic imagery and verse to create an atmosphere of wonder and magic in which she quietly yet joyously explores these treasures.

While modern orthodox practices are emphasized, the last chapter acknowledges that not every Jew celebrates Shabbat in this way. Doing something is better than not doing anything Kripke contends with examples. The book ends with the beautiful Shabbat hymn, "Yah Ribbon - Master of the World".

Boldly coloured, cheerful illustrations enhance the pleasure of reading Let's Talk about the Shabbat.

Wishing you a joyous Shavuot and Shabbat!

ORGANIZATIONS AND PEOPLE

past president of the Vaad Ha'Tir.

In a stirring address, Rabbi Howard Finkelstein told the 600 in attendance that Yom HaShoah should be a reminder of the importance of unity among the Jewish people. After all, he said, Hitler's hatred for Jews did not discriminate between Orthodox or Reform, secular or religious.

Another highlight of the evening was the presentation of the annual award to an educator who has done an outstanding job teaching about the Holocaust.

This year, the award has been renamed for the late Arie Van Man-sum, who died a year ago. A Catholic member of the Dutch Resistance who found hiding places and food for more than 100 Dutch Jews, Van Mansum was subsequently imprisoned in the Amersfoort Concentration Camp.

After he moved to Canada and set up his insurance business in Nepean, Van Mansum kept quiet about his heroic work, even though he was given a medal at Yom Yashem in 1970. But daughter Ria Euverman said her father started talking to students about his experiences to counteract the influence of Holocaust deniers.

Those who would deny the existence of the Holocaust also motivated the recipient of this year's Arie Van Mansum Memorial Award, Malcolm Lawrence of Sacred Heart School.

His other motivation, described in a moving speech, reflected his African-American heritage.

"I still remember that in the Civil Rights marches of the 1960s, there were many Jews who marched," Lawrence said. "I also remember that the list of names of martyrs to that cause included several Jewish names."

Malcolm Lawrence is presented with the Arie Van Mansum Memorial Award by Van Mansum's daughter, Ria Euverman.
